His most prominent success in his sporting career came with Real Madrid and the Spanish national football team as coach: amongst numerous titles, he has won the World Cup, one Europe Cup, two Champions Leagues and two Leagues.

As a player, Vicente del Bosque played in 441 official matches. He began with the national football team as a member of Club Deportivo Salmantino (subsidiary of Unión Deportiva Salamanca), leading in goals when he was only 17. He virtually spent his entire career as a player with Real Madrid, first in Castilla, and then, after an assignment year with Córdoba Club de Fútbol and another two with Club Deportivo Castellón, finally landed with Real Madrid, where he would remain on the first team for 11 seasons until 1984, during which time he helped the club win five league titles and four Copa del Rey titles.

He participated in 18 international tournaments with Spain, playing in the 1980 UEFA European Football Championship, where he scored a goal. On 3 February 2011, the King of Spain granted him the title of First Marquis of Del Bosque.

On 1 April 2011, he was awarded an honorary doctorate by the University of Castilla-La Mancha in recognition of his personal merits and sporting career and achievements. Also, he was awarded an honorary doctorate by the University Católica San Antonio de Murcia, on 28 January 2013, and he was awarded an honorary doctorate by the University Pontificia de Salamanca, on 15 April 2016.
